

In spite of recent enormous success of deep convolutional networks in object detection, they require a large amount of bounding box annotations, which are often