

Performance of deep metric learning depends heavily on the capability of mining hard negative examples during training. However, many metric learning algorithms