

Removing undesired reflections from images taken through the glass is of great importance in computer vision. It serves as a means to enhance the image qual