

Distance metric learning (DML) has been successfully applied to object classification, both in the standard regime of rich training data and in the few-shot scena