

Scene text detection attracts much attention in computer vision, because it can be widely used in many applications such as real-time text translation, automatic