

This paper studies the unsupervised embedding learning problem, which requires an effective similarity measurement between samples in low-dimensional emb