

Light field essentially represents the collection of rays in space. The rays captured by multiple light field cameras form subsets of full rays in 3D space and can b