

We present the first method to capture the 3D total motion of a target person from a monocular view input. Given an image or a monocular video, our method re