

Optimizing a network of maps among a collection of objects/domains (or map synchronization) is a central problem across computer vision and many other rele