

Road network extraction from satellite images often produce fragmented road segments leading to road maps unfit for real applications. Pixel-wise classification