

Weakly supervised object detection aims at reducing the amount of supervision required to train detection models. Such models are traditionally learned from im