

User identification from hand images only is still a challenging task. In this paper, we propose a new biometric identification system based solely on a skin patch