

Multi-person pose estimation is an important but challenging problem in computer vision. Although current approaches have achieved significant progress by fus