

This paper proposes the divergence triangle as a framework for joint training of a generator model, energy-based model and inference model. The divergence tr