

Transfer learning is widely used in deep neural network models when there are few labeled examples available. The common approach is to take a pre-trained