

Face anti-spoofing is an important task in full-stack face applications including face detection, verification, and recognition. Previous approaches build models on