

We propose the first general framework to automatically correct different types of geometric distortion in a single input image. Our proposed method employs co