

In two-view geometry, camera models and motion types are used as key knowledge along with the image point correspondences in order to solve several key p