

We present a novel approach for the task of human pose transfer, which aims at synthesizing a new image of a person from an input image of that person and a