

In this paper, we raise a new problem, namely cross model face recognition (CMFR), which has considerable economic and social significance. The core of this