

Cross-view image translation is challenging because it involves images with drastically different views and severe deformation. In this paper, we propose a novel