

One of the fundamental challenges in video object segmentation is to find an effective representation of the target and background appearance. The best perfor