

Single image calibration is the problem of predicting the camera parameters from one image. This problem is of importance when dealing with images collected