

This paper is about learning deep representations of images such that images belonging to the same class have more similar representations than those belong