

RGB images differentiate from depth as they carry more details about the color and texture information, which can be utilized as a vital complement to depth for