

From an image of a person in action, we can easily guess the 3D motion of the person in the immediate past and future. This is because we have a mental model of the person's motion.