As an alternative to manual pixel-wise annotation, synthetic data has been increasingly used for training semantic segmentation models. Such synthetic images