Weakly supervised learning has attracted growing research attention due to the significant saving in annotation cost for tasks that require intra-image annotation