Semi-supervised video object segmentation has made significant progress on real and challenging videos in recent years. The current paradigm for segmentation