Scene text detection methods based on neural networks have emerged recently and have shown promising results. Previous methods trained with rigid word-le