Shadow detection is an important and challenging task for scene understanding. Despite promising results from recent deep learning based methods. Existing w