This paper presents a region-partition based attraction field dual representation for line segment maps, and thus poses the problem of line segment detection (