Data augmentation is an effective technique for improving the accuracy of modern image classifiers. However, current data augmentation implementations are r