In this paper, we address the problem of rain removal from videos by proposing a more comprehensive framework that considers the additional degradation fact