Temporally locating and classifying action segments in long untrimmed videos is of particular interest to many applications like surveillance and robotics. While t