We present a task-specific approach to synthetic data generation. Our framework employs a trainable synthesizer network that is optimized to produce meaning