Manually annotating object segmentation masks is very time consuming. Interactive object segmentation methods offer a more efficient alternative where a hum