Recent advances in generative adversarial networks (GANs) have shown great potentials in realistic image synthesis whereas most existing works address syn