High-quality image inpainting requires filling missing regions in a damaged image with plausible content. Existing works either fill the regions by copying high-res