Deep networks consume a large amount of memory by their nature. A natural question arises can we reduce that memory requirement whilst maintaining perfor