Generalized zero-shot learning (GZSL) is the problem of learning a classifier where some classes have samples and others are learned from side information, li