Multi-person pose estimation is fundamental to many computer vision tasks and has made significant progress in recent years. However, few previous methods