On the one hand, deep neural networks are effective in learning large datasets. On the other, they are inefficient with their data usage. They often require copiou